Big 4 Convene To Draft Pacts

PARIS, April 25 (AP) — Foreign ministers of the United States, Russia, Great Britain and France met today in Luxembourg Palace for the purpose of preparing European treaties to end the greatest war in history.

Sec. Byrnes was the first to enter the palace where the four leading powers will attempt to iron out diferences which had blocked peace treaties for Italy, Romania, Hungary, Bulgaria and Finland.

It was Byrnes who suggested the conference be convened to solve problems which have deadlocked a council of deputy foreign ministers in London for months and caused a postponement of the screduled May 1 European peace conference.

Georges Bidault, French foreign minister and host, was there to meet his American colleague. Bidault had driven through streets lined with crowds to the palace wher gail-uniformed republican guardsmen snapped to attention.

Foreign Commissar Molotov of Russia arrived after Byrnes.

Foreign Secretary Bevin of Great Britain waved to the crowd and entered the palace last.

Film Notes On Courts, Courting

HOLLYWOOD, April 25 (AP) —The question of $75 weekly to support Carol Ann Berry was left in the hands of three appellate court justices. Joan Berry, 26, mother of 2-year-old Carol Ann, says $75 is inadequate and not commensurate with the worth of Charles Chaplin, which she estimated at $3,000,000.

Attorneys for the actor, 56, adjudged Carol Ann's father, asked the court to set aside the paternity judgment on the ground it was not based on evidence.

Joan Crawford, academy award winner, was scheduled for a personal appearance—this time in superior court to plead for divorce from Actor Philip Terry, accused of extreme cruelty. Terry, 28, has indicated he will not contest his 38-year-old wife's suit.

It will be wedding bells in June, they say, for Actor John Hodiak, 32, and Actress Anne Baxter, 22, two of the films' brighter rising stars. The ceremony is planned for the Burlingame, Cal., home of her parents. It will be the first marriage for each.

The great Gildersleeve, oft plagued with domestic difficulties on his radio program, faces one in real life. Atty. Jerry Giesler announced Mrs. Harold Peary would shortly sue for divorce.

Name of the WAC was withheld. The Army said it did not know circumstances of her fall.

Crewmen searched in two boats for two hours. At one time the rescuers heard the girl calling for help. She wore no life belt.

The air-sea rescue service of the Coast Guard prepared to make a search by plane.

Two WAC officers and six enlisted women were aboard the troopship, en route from Le Havre, with 649 other troops.

Fire Captain Rescued In Warehouse Blaze

A fire captain collapsed and was carried five floors to the street as more than 100 firemen, responding to four alarms, battled a spectacular blaze in a huge produce warehouse at Commercial and Richmond sts. early today. Damage was estimated at $25,000 by Fire Chief Napeen Boutilier, who listed the cause as undetermined, and ordered the arson squad to investigate. Capt. John F. Sampson was taken to City Hospital because of smoke inhalation. Inadequacy of the present equipment was demonstrated at the height of the blaze when one of two fire towers was put out of operation by a bursting hose line and the Navy had to rush floodlights to the scene as illuminating equipment failed.

The tower, stationed in Mercantile st., began pumping water into the blazing penthouse comprising the sixth and seventh floors of the warehouse shortly after flames broke through the roof and raged out of control. Hardly had it begun operating when the hose burst and a geyser drenched those nearby.

Ladders erected against the building were braced by other ladders. Chief Boutilier said this precaution has been taken at all fires now.

Overcome just before the fire was brought under control about dawn, Capt. Sampson, of Donnybrook rd., Brighton who is acting chief in the area, was rescued by Capt. John T. Cronin and members of Ladder 18. At City Hospital he was pronounced much improved a few hours after being admitted.

Chief Boutilier said the fire broke out in the first floor offices of J. S. Contas Bros. in the rear of the building in Mercantile st. Later, the fire spread to quarters occupied by James Ferrera and Sons, Inc., but fire walls prevented its further spread through the granite construction.

London Waits Bomb Blast Near Palace

LONDON, April 25 (AP)—Bomb disposal experts awaited tensely today the expected explosion of a 1000-pound German bomb, the mechanism of which suddenly came to life last night after the half-ton of explosives had lain buried for five years near Buckingham palace.

Police, anticipating the blast at any moment, maintained a cordon around St. James Park and diverted all traffic.

The mechanism of the bomb—familiarly known as "Annie"—started ticking last evening after it was uncovered in a 30-foot shaft by a disposal squad making preparations for its removal. Major A. E. Smith said the mechanism might tick for four days, but declared if the bomb failed to explode by 7 p. m. (1 p. m. EST) Friday "We'll blow it up."

The bomb is 350 yards from Buckingham Palace. The windows of the palace were thrown open to lessen the effect of a possible blast. The King, Queen and the two Princesses remained at Windsor Castle, where they had gone for the Easter holidays.

However, Queen Mother Mary, accompanied by the Earl of Athlone, former governor-general to Canada, and his wife, returned to Queen Mary's Marlborough House residence, directly across the mall from the buried bomb.

"Annie" and two other bombs fell on the Pall Mall side of St. James Park late in 1941. The others were removed last February.

Letendre Assets Probed for Clue

WOONSOCKET, R. I., April 25—The nationwide probe of the gangland slaying of John F. "Big Jack" Letendre today slowly unmasked an amazing career in gambling in which the victim either was riding a $2,000,000 wave or dodging a $1500 process server. Investigators were tracking down his big deals in Chicago, New York and Florida and somewhere along the trail they hoped to spot the transaction that halted his career.

It was revealed today that "Big Jack" in some amazing manner had lost during the last few years 40,000 shares of Narragansett Race Track stock, a fortune which many thought he still held. This stock was given him by the late Watler O'Hara, his pal and track founder, who tossed away millions in a similar orgy of wagering.

A civil suit against Letendre, heard only one week before he was slain, disclosed he had only 500 shares of common stock left, and Narragansett officials doubted even this "was legally owned." It was surmised the shares had either been attached or put up as loan collateral.

Records showed that all he had at Narragansett was $705.14—believed to be salary. Plaintiffs likewise were unsuccessful in finding anything attachable at his banks.

What investigators sought most to determine, however, was what and who had put the fear of death into the usual jovial and carefree gambler—fear plainly visible to his friends and which kept him from some of his haunts.

The night before he died he declined to attend one of the biggest dice games in the East, a game in which $100 bills were chicken feed. He had "done well" at the same game the Thursday night before he died, it was learned.

But when friends came to pick him up he stalled and refused to go to a neighboring city. One of those friends told reporters that $50,000 sometimes changed hands in an evening and he described "Big Jack" as one of the most daring of all. He was pictured as the biggest wagerer this side of New York, either at dice, the turn of a card or the speed of a horse.

Police today were checking in Chicago on the career of one of Letendre's partners in a Florida gambling venture. This man, who operated big amusements and gambling casinos in Chicago, Florida and New York, is known to

So. African Here to Study Hub's Famed Traffic Jams

Boston's traffic and parking problems are now so bad the city of Johannesburg, South Africa, has sent an official here to look it over and try to help Johannesburg from getting in the same fix.

The visitor, Jack Mincer, a city councilor, paid his respects to Mayor Curley today, then set forth with William P. Hickey, chairman of the traffic commission, to see the traffic sights.

Mincer said Johannesburg is trying to solve its own parking problem and that Boston's own problem is so widely heard about in South Africa his city government gladly shelled out to have him report on what Boston was doing about it.

Johannesburg's situation has become worse since Mincer set forth for Boston, the Associated Press disclosed. The South African gold boom has reached such proportions parking facilities within a mile of the stock exchange are jammed. Switchboards are so clogged it requires 10 minutes to make a telephone call.

"There is so much mining we can't have underground garages," Mincer said.

Freddie Bartholomew Elopes With Divorcee

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, April 25 (INS)—Love proved stronger than a promise today to Freddie Bartholomew, one-time Little Lord Fauntleroy of the screen. Motoring to Las Vegas, Nev., the 22-year-old actor was married to Maely Daniele, Los Angeles publicity woman, six years his senior and twice previously married. She gave her age as 28.

The elopement broke the promise Freddie made to his Aunt Millicent Bartholomew to delay the ceremony for two months so his fiancee and family could get better acquainted.

The compromise was effected after Freddie's aunt and former guardian had flown to Las Vegas to balk the young star's plan to wed on April 5.

Informed that her efforts had failed, Miss Bartholomew scarcely could believe it.

"Freddie told me he was going to a stag party," she said. "He had given me his word he wouldn't get married while my mother is so ill. We had been trying to get her well enough to return to England so the secret could be kept from her if he went through with his plan. All I can say is that I am shocked and horrified."

Miss Daniele and Freddie showed up in Las Vegas at 1:50 a. m., and took the vows half an hour later at the home of an attorney.

When he got the license, Freddie said: "This is the first document I ever signed without reading it."

After the ceremony, the bride was quoted as saying: "I hope nobody calls me "Little Mrs. Fauntleroy."

The honeymoon couple said they were chartering a plane to return to Hollywood today so Freddie could make a test at the Paramount studio.

The actor and his bride met several months ago while appearing in a little theater production of "Candida," in which he played a young man in love with an older woman.

Boston Vet, N. Y. Youth To Enter Oratory Finals

By BERT FORD

Triumphant in the Eastern zone finals of the 1946 Hearst Newspapers National Oratorical Contest, a Boston World War II veteran and a 17-year-old high school senior from New York will enter the national finals of this famous competition May 2. Winners in the zone elimination, the most thrilling and closely contested battle of oratory since the educational project was inaugurated four years ago, were William A. Burke, 26, of Mohan st., Everett, now completing his education at Staley College of the Spoken Word under the GI Bill of Rights, and Anthony J. Bivona, 17, of Elizabeth st., New York, senior at La Salle Academy, Manhattan.

Both will receive a $250 Victory bond and an added $50 bond for their achievement in reaching the zone finals and will compete with Midwest and Pacific zone winners in the national finals, to be held in Boston Latin School auditorium, scene of last night's competition.

Contestant from four Eastern seaboard cities matched their oratorical talents on the contest subject, "Andrew Jackson, Seventh President of the United States," and so hard-fought was the battle that it required nearly half an hour for the judges to reach a decision as to the victors.

The eastern zone finals were held in a crowded auditorium, and it was with dramatic impact that young Bivona was announced as the high school winner. His mother and brother and uncle and a 12-year-old cousin had come unexpectedly from New York to attend the contest, and to cheer him to victory. Bivona's father is a New York baker.

Relatives and friends of other contestants in the eastern zone were also present in full force, including an enthusiastic delegation from Albany, rooting for the sole girl who reached the zone finals, Miss Ann Horan, 18, representing Cathedral Academy in Albany.

For William Burke there was also a special ovation. As a veteran of World War II, he spoke of Andrew Jackson as a great general and President who, in these postwar days, would have solved the crucial problems as he did in his own time and who would have emphasized government, not for the privileged, but for the common man.

Contestants, aside from the winners, included Roland Weyand, 17, of Quincy, representing Boston College High School; John J. Seal, 21, a World War II veteran, of St. John's University, Brooklyn; William J. Heil, 17, of Loyola High School, Baltimore; Louis Millo, 19, of the University of Baltimore, and Ann Horan, 18, of Cathedral Academy, Albany.

Judges at the contest, who were entertained at dinner at the Copley Plaza hotel, headquarters of the contest, before the oratorical battle started, were Dr. David E. Weglein, superintendent of public education, Baltimore, Md.; Lt. Gov. Joe R. Hanley of New York, and Judge Abraham E. Pinanski, Suffolk Superior Court, Boston.

Chairman of the eastern zone finals was John J. Desmond, Jr., commissioner of education for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Keynoting the purpose of the contest, Commr. Desmond said, introducing the orators:

"The purpose of these oratorical contests is to bring the youth of America in closer touch with the statesmen and patriots who helped make this nation great, and to instill in the younger generation a keener interest and respect for our country's history and traditions."

The oratory contest was enlivened by entertainment which included stars known from coast to coast. Ranny Weeks, recently discharged from the Navy with the rank of lieutenant commaander, and now at the Balinese Room at Hotel Somerset, was master of ceremonies.

Georgie Price, Broadway's master of song and comedy, outdid himself in a special skit dedicated to the contestants, and continued with inimitable humor. Georgie is now appearing at the Bradford Roof.

Pat Rooney, Jr., youngest of the dancing Rooneys, who is featured at the Gay Nineties, tapped out his rhythmic measures, and Harold Rodman, master of the art of makeup of historic personalities, presented a living portrait of Andrew Jackson.

There were songs by Marion Mulhall of Jimmy O'Keefe's and the Music Box, and piano music by Joe Sinatra of the Bradford Roof. Other artists included Johnny "Scat" Davis, screen and stage maestro now at the Rio Casino, and Joan Hunt, Ruby Newman's new singing sensation.

Music was under direction of Ralph Scott and Sammy Eisen.

These Days

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

(Copyright, 1946, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

EVERY TIME someone urges an idea, a theory, a special plea, he yanks out the atomic bomb and frightens his listeners into intellectual apoplexy.

That is what Owen J. Roberts did at the Associated Press luncheon. He literally sought to scare his listeners into an acceptance of his conception of the brotherhood of man by means of world government.

His speech might have been worthy of more consideration had the learned jurist not felt impelled to punctuate his wisdom with atomic bombs.

It is much like that with the OPA. The rebellion in the House of Representatives was undoubtedly a response to homeside antagonism to a bureaucratic despotism which has deprived the American people of consumer's goods, permitted prices to rocket through its unscientifically conceived ceilings and stimulated the Black Market by its inept battle against the law of supply and demand.

And whenever the OPA is literally caught pantsless, it shrieks, beware or your rents will rise!

MEMBERS of Congress get letters like this:

"Today, I went shopping. My butcher is an honest man (he tells me he deals on the "Gray" Market in order to stay in business). He has been worried but now he is getting frightened. The meat situation is grave . . . He tells me the price relief was a penny or two on about six items.

"Next I went to the grocer—no butter, oleo, soap powder, canned fruit, mayonnaise, little cheese. He pays six dollars a year for a 'license' to sell butter which he can't find. Now he must get a beer 'license'—and there is very little of that. I talked to the beer salesman and asked him for the 'motive' behind the 'cut.' He said the Farm Bloc makes more selling wheat other places and feeding it to the cattle (which go into the Black Market). Also, the idea appeals to the 'dry' voter."

OR TAKE this item from the Walden, N. Y., "Citizen Herald":

Copyright, 1946, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

"Frankly, Judge, could YOU watch out for traffic lights?"

"Sometime between now and Saturday night, stop in at 9 Oak st. in Walden and visit the busy little shop of the Big Zee Toy & Novelty Company before the Government closes it up. Stop in and say hello to the crippled owner and operator, Harry Zelmon, the man who is going to be driven out of business by the Government. Stop in and say goodbye to a thriving little wood-working shop whose only offense is that it wants the right to work and do business honestly and legitimately. Stop in and say goodbye to good job opportunities for ex-GIs who are physically handicapped as Harry Zelmon is, but who still can work with at least one hand. Stop in, look over the situation, hear the facts, and then wonder what YOU'D do if YOUR Government were to wipe YOU out, utterly and completely, by Saturday night.

"Harry Zelmon doesn't want sympathy. He wants work. He doesn't want relief. He wants the opportunity to earn his own living. He has stated his case to the Government and the verdict is unchanged: Harry Zelmon will be driven out of business Saturday night."

THIS IS the kind of statement of fact that a Congressman has to meet if he wants to stay in Congress. Against it all the synthetic letters and telegrams of PAC and CIO are meaningless because the Congressman knows his own folks. They are his voters, not big city stooges who are marched this way and that advocating this idea and that, like bleating sheep.

The OPA started with a bad law. When Congress passed the act organizing it, wise and experienced men called attention to its defects. The act has been incompetently and even stupidly administered during the whole of its existence.

Paul Porter, the present OPA head, must be excluded from blame, but never has Washington seen the equal of Chester Bowles, of whom the best that can be said is that he, with the deepest sincerity, kids not only others, but himself.

Arraign Jilted Chef In Shooting of Girl

Jealous infatuation for the girl who married his cousin led to the shooting of Mrs. Athena Liakos, 27, Jay st., Cambridge, by John Liakos, 50, South End chef, police revealed today. The girl, wounded twice in the stomach, was kept alive at Cambridge City Hospital by blood plasma infusions.

Officers said the South End man admitted the shooting and quoted him as saying he intended to end his own life, but failed because his revolver jammed.

"She ruined my life," Liakos was quoted. "I decided to end everything for both of us."

Police and members of the girl's family said the shooting, which occurred on the sidewalk of River st., Cambridge, near her father's home, climaxed months of threats against Mrs. Liskos.

In East Cambridge Court, Liakos was charged with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon with intent to murder and Judge Louis L. Green continued the case until May 7, holding the defendant in $50,000 bail. He was taken to East Cambridge jail.

Carl B. Johnson, 42, attracted by the quarrel in front of his River st. home, went to Mrs. Liakos' assistance when he heard her scream. "Don't shoot me! Don't shoot!"

Before he could reach her, she had broken away from her assailant, who then fired two shots, Johnson said. The gun then jammed, according to Johnson's story.

Has Double Trouble

This 'Miss Truman' Votes GOP!

By VIRGINIA VAN DER VEER

WASHINGTON, April 25 (AP)—Looking like Margaret Truman isn't all autographs and snappy taxi service. Mary Gene Miller, who's a smallish Kentucky blonde, says it isn't quite safe. People get "so-o mad" when she's not.

Since she hit Washington from Mumfordville, Ky., four months ago, Mary Gene has had her arm plucked at by many a sharp-eyed sightseer.

"Miss Truman?" says the sightseer eagerly. "Miss Miller," says Miss Miller politely. That's just the beginning.

Mary Gene tries to break it gently but it's tough to tell a happy autograph hunter he's caught a Capitol Hill secretary instead of the President's daughter.

Margaret's double works for Sen. Stanfill (R.) of Kentucky, and it shakes the faith of many a sightseer to be told his "Margaret Truman" is a Republican.

It started, recalls patient Miss Miller, the very first week she got here. She was asked for an autograph by a fellow street car passenger who thought he'd run across the President's daughter.

Mary Gene (5 feet 4½) is only a half inch shorter than Margaret but admits to 114 pounds with a faint hint of satisfaction. At the White House they say Margaret varies between 118 and 120.

At 24 and a working girl, Mary Gene tries to be very adult about the whole thing. Margaret, after all, is a college student and a mere 22.

On the whisper "there goes Margaret Truman," Mary Gene starts looking too.

"I'm sort of curious," she puts it mildly. "After all—it might be."

Hubby Gets Even In Bopping Spree

Anthony D'Orio, 26, Myrtle st., West End, who is on probation for buffeting his wife, Katherine, 36, haled her into municipal court today and heard her placed on probation for belaboring him.

Then they both heard Judge Carr lecture him for throwing up a job to go on the veterans' unemployment compensation rolls, to which was added the advice they both ought to keep out of Scollay sq., "a breeding place of sin."

Mrs. D'Orio testified her mate had chucked a $30-a-week job as a parking attendant so he could qualify for $20 a week in unemployment compensation. But he was so tight with the $20, she said, that when she met him in Scollay sq., Sunday, he refused to buy her a meal.

Whereupon, she admitted, she had bopped him with her handbag, as charged, and he had turned her in to the law.

Judge Carr, who was informed that D'Orio was under a six-month suspended sentence for hitting her, gave her probation for six months and a suspended sentence of 10 days.

Lions Given Brush Off

VIENNA, April 25 (AP)—Two elephants, two lions and a giraffe—claimed as war reparations by a French showman—have been removed from the famed Schoenbrunn Zoo here and taken to Paris.

Zoo officials contended the animals were not those taken by the Germans from Paris, but the showman, Firmin Bouglione, convinced Allied authorities they were his.

At the River Enns, the demarcation line between the Russian and American zones, all civilian passengers, including the animals, were subject to delousing.

One duster said: "We worked on the elephants and the giraffe, but we did not bother the lions."

Reds Out to Wreck U. S. Rule, Rep. Rogers Warns

Asserting there are hundreds of thousands of Communists in the United States determined to overthrow the American system of government, economy and society, Rep. Edith Nourse Rogers called on the women of America today to battle Communism by upholding religion, by thought, by speech, and by the ballot.

In an address at the luncheon session of the New England Conference of Republican Women at the Copley-Plaza, Rep. Rogers declared she was convinced these "grim, fanatical, determined, ruthless, cunning schemers are more dangerous than most persons suppose them to be."

"Communism in the United States today is a cleverly planned, bold, insolent, well-financed, skillfully-managed political and revolutionary movement, reaching out in every direction, sending out propagandists, using the most scientific methods of persuasion over the radio, through the press and magazines, by lecture, and even in a dangerously large section of our pulpit and our schools and colleges.

"They have their training centers, their schools for agitators, their indoctrination. These Communists are reaching out to try to contaminate the ranks of labor, of the veterans, as well as of the church-going people, the students and the teachers everywhere."

Rep. Roger's address on "Communism in the United States," highlighted the opening day of the GOP conference which tonight will feature dinner addresses by Carroll Reece, new national Republican committee chairman, Sen. Revercomb of West Virginia, Sinclair Weeks, national committeeman, and Miss Marion E. Martin, assistant national GOP chairman and the conference director.

Reese, in an interview, predicted the Republicans will gain eight to 10 congressional seats in New England in this fall's elections, and forecast the national GOP gain in House membership would be between 35 and 50. He said national party leaders were encouraged by the possibility of Henry Cabot Lodge winning the Massachusetts Senate contest with Sen. Walsh.

As politics, Communism is "big politics," Mrs. Rogers charged, and as an infiltrating group movement it is a "big movement." She said they obtained their funds to operate by deluding many wealthy persons who have provided them with millions of dollars; have "insinuated" their henchmen into key government positions where they exercise much patronage and control over business.

Rep. Rogers exhorted women, as the special guardians of religion, which Communism would stamp out, to stand by their faith for the sake of the world, and to vote, think, talk and act American.

He Lost Yesterday

Albert in Court, Finds It Is Today

Many a man has gone looking for yesterday in one sense or another but when Albert Woking, 57, of Myrtle st., Beacon Hill, came right out and admitted it, the police took him in for his own good.

Woking, according to authorities in municipal court today, was weaving through the public marts yesterday in a manner that convinced them he had more aboard than a man could be expected to carry. Moreover, he appeared to be looking for something, so they asked him what he sought.

"I am looking for yesterday," Woking told them. That was the clincher. They jugged him.

Woking pleaded not guilty today to drunkenness. Judge Jennie Loitman Barron asked him what he had meant. He answered, dreamily, cryptically, "Perhaps I was trying to be funny."

Judge Barron filed the charge. "You have found yesterday today," she told him.

Guest, 82, at 67-65 Bridal Takes Cake 'to Dream On'

PHILADELPHIA, April 25 (INS)—A 67-year-old bridegroom and his 65-year-old bride, both grandparents, were honeymooning today after a unique marriage in Philadelphia.

Arthur H. Southard met his bride, the former Mrs. Hortense Thoms, last January when she joined the Golden Age Club—a social club for persons over 65.

Southard escorted her home after her second meeting and they became engaged last month.

"We waited to get married only because it was Lent," explained the bridegroom.

Southard's son and daughter were the attendants and the youngest persons in the bridal party. All the 100 guests were club members and over 65.

The club, which meets bi-monthly, is supported by a Catholic church, two Protestant churches and two synagogues.

One slip of a woman, who said she was 82, took a piece of wedding cake home "to sleep on," in the best dream-of-your-future-husband tradition.

"It brings you luck," she said.

Each of the elderly club members wished the couple "a long life of happiness."

2 Lynn Wives Seek Divorces

Her husband, a landscape gardener, took to remodeling her by breaking her nose, fracturing her finger, pulling her hair and throwing her out the door, Mrs. Jessie B. Barry, 36, of Fayette st., Lynn, testified today in Salem Court as she sought a divorce from Frank A. Barry of Marblehead.

Mrs. Barry said he became enraged when he came home drunk one morning at 3 and she refused to get him a meal. She said because of intoxication he was able to work only two months of the year.

Mrs. Georgia Mavrikos, 27, of Flint st., Lynn, said that when she asked her husband, George, to take her to the hospital to have a baby, he refused and shouted that women in Europe have babies in fields.

She said when he lost his job he kicked her out of bed and said a good wife would support him.

Judge John V. Phelan took the cases under advisement.

U. S. Asked to Limit Food to Japan

WASHINGTON, April 25 (AP)—The Far Eastern Commission laid down the policy today that the United States should send only enough food to Japan to safeguard the Allied occupation forces.

As expected, the commission also asked the government to review immediately its decision to ship more than half a million tons of food to the Japanese during the first six months of this year.

"Entwhistle Rug Company? It's about the grass rug you sold me!"

Sen. Murphy Blasts Tobin for Appointment of King

Gov. Tobin's appointment of Rudolph FKing, registrar of motor vehicle as state public works commissioner to succeed Herman A. MacDorld, was made to further the Governor's own political future at the expense of the Democratic party, Sen. Joseph L. Murphy, Dorchester, charged today.

Murphy, a wounded World War II veteran and Democratic floor leader in the State Senate, said King lacked necessary experience.

"The apointment may be an enigma to some people, but to me the motive behind the Governor's act is as simple as ABC. Some people may consider it a smart move, but I don't, because he let down the Democratic party to further his own personal ends.

"It was a self-serving action. Why didn't he appoint a Democrat to the position? Why didn't he name an outstanding engineer? Mr. King is an estimable gentleman and has done a good job as registrar. I have no quarrel with him, but he has had no experience in the construction of highways or the building of airports. Why replace an experienced man by an inexperienced one? Mr. King has been a leather salesman.

"The Governor charged MacDonaid with delaying the road program. Can he expect an inexperienced man to pep it up? When former Gov. Saltonstall ousted Public Works Commr. William F. Callahan, a Democrat, he named a Republican in his place. Why didn't Gov. Tobin follow Saltonstall's lead? It is a well known fact in politics that to the victor belongs the spoils. Gov. Tobin preferred not to follow Saltonstall's lead and in so doing he let his own party down."

Lobsterman Saved From Flaming Boat

Helpless aboard his 24-foot lobster boat, Emily and Mary, which burst into flames off the entrance of Rye Harbor, N. H., Gabriel Fratus, of Tremont st., Provincetown, was rescued by a police boat crew headed by Rye Chief A. Manning Remix, the Coast Guard here reported today.

A crash boat from Portsmouth, N. H., and a Catalina flying boat from Beverly were en route to the scene when Rye police flashed word of the rescue. The lobster boat was damaged beyond repair.

Nylon Blackout

EAST LANSING, Mich., April 25 (AP)—Nylon is unpopular among East Lansing residents—at least as a name for a street.

Following their petition of protest, the county road commission authorized a change of address for the 28 families living on Nylon ave. They now live on Spartan ave.

"All right, Aesop—what's the fable tonight?"

They Weren't Pink Snakes!

EVANSTON, Ill., April 25 (AP)—"Heavens to St. Patrick," said two policemen, as they sped on a mission to drive a couple dozen snakes out of Evanston last night.

They headed for the 1400 block on Chicago ave. after residents had telephoned the snakes definitely were not charming any one, but had frightened many.

The policemen learned the snakes had been released by Miss Linda Mueller, 17, a biology student at Northwestern University.

"Why," Miss Mueller told the policemen, "the snakes won't hurt anybody. They're good for the neighborhood. They eat harmful insects."

She told the officers she had collected 30 snakes for experimental purposes but decided two ribbon snakes, two plain snakes and two garter snakes were enough. She turned the other 24 into the back yard.

Miss Mueller, who said she was the only woman member of the Herpetology Society of Chicago, advised the officers on the easiest way to capture the reptiles.

But after a diligent search, Wroblewski and Drieske, non-members of the society, didn't find any of them.

CAPETOWN, South Africa, April 25 (AP)—A woman stowaway was found in a mailbag addressed to "J. C. Smuts, London" shortly before a mailplane took off from Palmietfontein airport, Germiston, for London today.

Seventy-five - year - old Field Marshal Jan Christiaan Smuts, South African prime minister, is now in Egypt en route to London for the prime ministers conference.

The woman was discovered by airport police who caught a native tying the bag at 2 a. m. She said she was going to London "for medical treatment" and admitted her arrival there would "probably have occasioned surprise" for the field marshal.

U. S. to Lift Shoe Production Curb

WASHINGTON, April 25 (AP)—With OPA's approval, the civilian production administration pushed plans today to suspend a manufacturing control which helped hold shoe prices down during the war.

And OPA laid some plans of its own to boost prices on low cost shoes in an effort to make more of them available.

U.S.-Born Polish Girl Tells Siberia Ordeal

By ROBERT GREEN

That Poland today is a Russian state and as tightly in the grip of the Soviet Union as formerly in that of Nazi Germany was the concensus expressed today by a group of repatriated Polish-Americans who arrived in Boston on the Liberty freighter Charles Bulfinch.

Fearful of reprisals against friends and relatives forced to remain in Poland the three women and a man, the adult members of the group of seven repatriates, said they could not give in detail the incidents proving Soviet control.

Boston born Elenor Gozewski, 25-year-old student of government, and her brother, Konrad Martin, 11, endured probably the most severe privations of any in the group. All were semi-starved for six years and risked death almost daily because of the constantly shifting pattern of the war.

Miss Gozewski, who had not heard until the ship docked that her father was safe in Italy and was awaiting discharge as a Polish legionnaire, spent neatly a year with her brother Konrad in Siberia. She and a million and a half other Poles had been deported there from the Russian occupied section of Poland in 1940.

"Back in 1935," said Elenor, my father took my mother, my brother, who was then a baby, my sister Irene and me back to Poland to live. I planned to stay only a few years because even as a young schoolgirl I was interested in a diplomatic career. When the war broke out and we dreaded the approach of the Nazis and were relieved to learn the Russians were moving into Vilno to keep the Nazis out.

"But what a shock! Prosperous businessmen like my father were jailed. They weren't millionnaires or big the way we rate businessmen in America, but they represented capatalists to the Russians.

"One day they began rounding up what they call the bourgeoisie and despite our protestations of American citizenship they forced my mother and brother and my grandmother into freight cars with thousands of others.

"We were packed in, 60 to 70 in a car. All day long the cars were motionless and the people were kept locked up. At night the trains would move steadily to the east and north.

"People died on the trains, but the living had to ride with the dead.

"After two weeks, we arrived at our destination—Siberia, exile and death. We were dumped out into the Steppe country with nothing in sight for hundreds of miles.

"My grandmother died and my mother became so ill that she died shortly after we were permitted to return to Vilno. Thousands died during the winter with the temperature 50 below for days on end. People traded what few clothes they had for something to eat, then died from the cold. We were told that more than a half million people died among the exiles.

"The International Red Cross finally convinced the Russians we were Americans, and we were permitted to return to Vilno."

Miss Gozewski said her family lived in a suburb of Vilno for only a few months before the Nazis came to bring new terror. After the U. S. entered the war the Nazis kept a close watch upon them, she said, but did not confine them.

"Time-on-Your-Hands" Gowns—Whitehead

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE Beauty and Fashion Editor

ALL THE graciousness, the brightness and the refreshed atmosphere of time-on-your hands and love-in-your-heart shine through in luxurious fabrics, beautiful floating folds and rich colors. That's fashion . . . that's this season's claim to femininity.

Today we conclude our "34 Designers Dress You for Spring" series . . . in which the spring clothes and personally signed credo of 34 of the nation's top-flight dress creators were featured daily.

Like a child guarding her last bit of candy . . . we've purposely saved Joseph Whitehead's gracious-living clothes for the spotlight closing act in the fashion parade . . . the last but by no means the least of the couture designing group.

No panorama of feminine fashion for this or any other season would ever be complete without "at home" attire. And now that the war is over . . . and women have again assumed their merited place of importance in the realm of charming womanhood . . . "at home" and evening clothes are bread-and-butter essentials.

The evening gowns, hostess and boudoir costumes of this great designer show that gracious living has returned . . . and that the Great Lady is on the threshold of a new and glorious era . . . be she in romantic chiffon gowns with wonderful waltz-time sweep . . . or presiding over a charmingly appointed table . . . "at home" to friends in comfortable but glamorous house robe.

34 Designers Dress You for Spring

NAKED SHOULDERS feminize Joseph Whitehead's romantic "gray cloud" chiffon evening gown . . . Bodice is embroidered with gold bugle beads and sequins for the glamorous touch. Note the interesting strap effect over the shoulders and center union in the shirring. Truly "a dream."

STRIPED SURAH in gray, blue and brown . . . is generously used in this exciting post-war house robe by Joseph Whitehead. The wide sleeves . . . lined with green crepe . . . may be turned into wide cuffs at the wrist.

LUXURIOUS fabrics and fluid cut show war-is-over-excitement this spring. There is a fullness to the clothes that will delight women after a wartime program of straight lines and slim skirts.

The newest feature of "at home" clothes this spring is the capelet line. Little capes are replacing sleeves on fitted, topped full-skirted housecoats and negligees. Comfort for an evening "at home" is found in the various surah house robes. These are stunning in plaids or striped surah and have gathered skirts and huge, loose sleeves.

Evening gowns are truly feminine. My favorite has naked shoulders and touches of ostrich feathers. Some are late-Victorian in theme, done in raw silk. They are sleekly moulded in the front and pulled into draped effects in the back.

Joseph Whitehead

Avocado High in Food Value

By MARTHA LEE
Household Editor

DO YOU SERVE AVOCADO SALADS to your family? Well, here's your opportunity. This year calavo avocado prices are surprisingly low and the fruit is a valuable addition to salad variety. Also, the ability of the fruit to pinch-hit to good advantage when butter is short for sandwiches—and the satisfying character of calavo salads when meat is scarce gives it an outstanding place among foods.

The popular way to serve avocados seems to be the half-shell salad. It has many variations but none is more attractive than the unadorned half calavo, banked on a bed of salad greens, with a simple dressing of lemon or lime juice and salt. Use the small-sized calavo half-shell as dinner appetizer, as dinner salad to accompany the meat course, or as a separate salad course for a formal dinner. Reserve the larger sized half-shell as the salad entree of buffet or luncheon menus.

Among the conveniences of the naturally emulsified fruit of calavo pears is its special adaptability to the making of a smooth pastel green salad dressing for which the apt name "Calavonnaise" has been coined.

CALAVONNAISE

1 tbsp. lemon or lime juice
2 tbsp. evaporated milk
½ tsp. salt
1 tsp. prepared mustard
6 drops Tabasco sauce
¾ cup sieved calavo

Add lemon or lime juice to milk and beat well. Add salt, mustard, Tabasco sauce, and blend thoroughly. Add sieved calavo and beat. May be kept in refrigerator two or three days. A surface covering of citrus juice (and salt) postpones oxidation.

VARIATIONS

Vary to taste with small amount of grated horseradish, Worcestershire sauce, vinegar, celery or garlic salt. Cream may be used as a thinning agent.

Calavonnaise may be included in a reducing diet because it supplies only one-third of the calories of mayonnaise. At the same time, its pastel green gives it refreshing appearance; be sure to use the green surface next to the skin.

It is useful also as a sauce with fresh tomatoes or vegetable salad and such hot or cold vegetables as asparagus and artichokes.

VEGETABLE HALF-SHELL

2 calavos
2-3 cup diced pickled beets
1-3 cup cocktail onions
2 medium-sized tomatoes
2 tbsp. calavonnaise dressing
3 tbsp. cocktail sauce

Prepare half-shells. Sprinkle cut portions with lemon or lime juice and salt. Enlarge centers by scooping out slightly and dice removed flesh. Combine with beets, onions, peeled and cubed tomatoes, and a sprinkling of salt. Mix lightly and refill halves. Dress with blended mayonnaise and cocktail sauce and chill. Makes 4 servings.

Cream Mask a Facial Lifesaver

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE
Beauty and Fashion Editor

THE FICKLENESS of the weather and the stress and the strain of the past week preparing a new-season wardrobe add up in our beauty book to facial fatigue.

Most of us have been so busy acquiring the beauty of clothes for our back . . . that we've forgotten that beauty usually begins with the countenance . . . that expression medium that builds up or tears down our complete appearance.

You can wear the most expensive garb in town . . . yet if your complexion doesn't reflect the vivacious vitality of your exquisitely tailored suit . . . or your out-of-this-world hat or bonnet . . . it's no go for the look that enchants.

That's why we think today's beauty accent on a penetrating, quick-acting mask . . . a soft, creamy dish that's as palatable to the skin as it is to the sight . . . merits an especially serious consideration. It has the cosmetic potency to lift your complexion immediately out of the doldrums with only one treatment. Even our friends have backed up our opinion of this purposeful facial treatment.

Cream to apply . . . it remains cream when removed . . . leaving the skin downy soft and marble-smooth.

For the name of this penetrating cream mask, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, Monday through Saturday, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

GARAGE BILL APPROVED

THE IMPORTANT Legislative Committee on Cities has approved the construction of a garage under Boston Common.

This is one of the greatest contributions the Committee could make to the future welfare of the city and State.

The garage is the key to the solution of the Boston traffic problem, which the New York Times and other reputable authorities have called "THE WORST IN THE NATION."

It will mark the beginning of the end of the decentralization of business and industry which has brought Boston to the brink of ruin.

It will be a veritable godsend to the thousands of motorists who come to the State capital for business or pleasure.

It will stimulate employment tremendously.

It will be of great benefit to the returning war veterans who want jobs.

It will be a model for all other cities and towns which desire to take full advantage of the automotive age.

IN THE endorsement of the garage, the Committee on Cities followed the recommendations of the leaders of both political parties.

Governor Tobin has called the garage an urgent necessity.

So has Lieutenant Governor Bradford.

And Former Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr.

And Speaker of the House Frederick B. Willis.

They want Boston to be a modern city.

They want Massachusetts to be a progressive State.

They realize that the garage will help make both goals attainable.

AND FOR THAT REASON, THEY ARE ANXIOUS TO HAVE THE GARAGE AUTHORIZED AND CONSTRUCTED AS SOON AS POSSIBLE.

THE COMMITTEE on Cities has wisely specified that the garage be built by private enterprise.

This will result in a better structure.

It will encourage more efficient management.

It will set a commendable example for all other cities and towns of the State.

AND IT WILL NOT COST THE TAXPAYERS A SINGLE DOLLAR.

Eventually, ownership of the garage will pass to the city without obligations or encumbrances of any kind.

The plan follows the pattern of the world-famous Union Square Garage in San Francisco, which is being widely imitated all over the country.

PRESENCE OF the garage will not impair the appearance of the Common in any respect.

On the contrary, the garage will improve the venerable park tremendously.

There will be sufficient revenue for beautiful gardens and lawns.

There will be money for up-to-date recreational facilities.

There will be an incentive to eliminate the deplorable conditions which have been associated with the Common for many years.

BUT MOST IMPORTANT OF ALL, THE GARAGE WILL BE A SYMBOL OF THE REVIVED AND RE-INVIGORATED MASSACHUSETTS, AS WELL AS PROOF THAT THE STATE DOES NOT INTEND TO TOLERATE ANOTHER PERIOD OF STAGNATION, DECAY AND NEEDLESS UNEMPLOYMENT.

EVERY SENATOR and Representative who votes for the garage votes for prosperity—prosperity for the people—all the people and particularly for the returning war veterans.

The blocked streets to the seaport and airport must be opened.

Traffic must flow freely and easily through the Commonwealth's capital and front-door metropolis.

Bottlenecks which mean economic strangulation must be broken.

WHAT TYPE of aircraft do you plan to buy for family use? Now, don't dismiss this question by saying you haven't considered the matter as you haven't the price of an airplane. You can dream, can't you? I think I'll get one of those five-passenger helicopters. This hasn't the speed of an airplane but it can go fast enough for me. Up to 150 miles an hour, I understand. I like the idea of being able to park your aircraft in your backyard and to rise right up from that spot rather than having to go to an airport to get a start on a trip.

Dixie and Bing have been married 15 years. The latter is 45. He was a hard-to-get bachelor of 30 when he succumbed to Miss Lee's charms. He proposed by singing "I Surrender, Dear" to her over the telephone.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS: Q—Am I right in saying Ernest R. Ball wrote both words and music of "Love Me, and the World Is Mine"? A—You're wrong. Ball wrote the music and Dave Reed, the words. The first entertainer to sing this song in public was Eugene Howard; the second, Truly Shattuck. Q—How is the name of Jorge Pasquel, the Mexican baseball magnate, pronounced? A—"Horgay Paskail." Q—My husband regularly shaves three times a day. Know anybody who can top that, or even tie it? A—I understand Spain's General Franco is shaved three times every day by a left-handed barber. Don't know of anybody who can top your spouse's shaving record but wait until we hear from Brooklyn.

IDEAS: Ever have brilliant ideas you figure might make you a fortune? So do I. But do you do anything about them? I never do. Durling, the Dynamic Dreamer, that's me. I have just been talking to a fellow who knows Max Twentier of Phoenix, Ariz. Max is that former G. I. Joe who figured out the idea that signet rings bearing division insignia would be easy to sell to war veterans. He backed the idea with his mustering out pay. After selling thousands of such rings by mail, Twentier, who is 26 years old, started manufacturing and selling other types of jewelry. Now, eight months after he started, he has a million dollar a year mail order business in costume jewelry.

ADVICE: "Take the first advice of a woman, and not the second." That is what many men of experience have advised. In her first advice a woman is guided by intuition. So that advice is usually good. However, when a female endeavors to reach a conclusion by processes of reasoning she generally becomes confused. She can't make up her mind. So then her advice is usually bad.

SAYS SHE: "At present I am the only woman in an office where there are 30 men," writes a Chicagoan. "I have worked with as many as 150 men. All men are wolves. Some show it more than others. Some not at all. But at heart they are all wolves. So are the women. But we are more discreet."

STOOPERS: "What in the world is a stooper?" asks a feminine subscriber of Champaign, Ill. A "stooper" in turf parlance is a person who is always stooping to pick up discarded mutuel tickets in the hope he may find a cashable one thrown away by mistake. At times the "stoopers" do all right. One day, about six years ago, at the Jamaica track the first and second horses in the last race were disqualified. So the animal finishing third became the winner. Seeing their choice come in third a lot of bettors had thrown away their tickets as being worthless and rushed for the trains or to the auto parking space. On this memorable day one eagle-eyed "stooper" is said to have picked up $11,000 worth of discarded cashable tickets.

PLEASE NOTE: In a town in Indiana a dog, after his master's death, pined away and finally died of a broken heart. The widow, touched by the dog's devotion, decided to have him buried by the side of his beloved master in a local cemetery. This aroused a storm of protest from other plot owners who stated the burial of a dog in a regular cemetery is "offensive and disgusting." Possibly the objection of these plot owners was justified but it seems they could have expressed it in a nicer way. Dogs and horses and their masters have been buried side by side before. Possibly not in Indiana but most certainly in the Far West.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Copyright, 1946, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Westbrook Pegler

He has been involved in bankruptcy frauds in his career, having served two terms under three charges—one of 60 days in New York, the other of three years and four months in Atlanta.

With other members of his family he has had great experience in bankruptcy.

He also paid a fine of $100 in New York under the Sherman Act for threatening to picket liquor dealers who were not patronizing bottlers and rectifiers with whom he and certain of his friends were said to have had business relations.

Recently he beat a black market liquor indictment in Newark, N. J.

Pross' Wine, Liquor and Distillery Workers' Local is only one of many unions which he controls.

He has appeared in the records of the New York District Attorney's office as business manager of the United Window Trimmers' and Displaymen's Local Number 640 and has claimed to represent Federal Local Number 20734.

Altogether, from time to time, the publications of the A. F. of L. activities in New York have identified him with 17 unions in executive positions.

He was mentioned as having been associated with Mike Lomars, stick-up man, in a union of tobacco workers in New York until Lomars got from 12 to 20 years for the holdup of Mrs. James V. Forrestal, the wife of the Secretary of the Navy.

Lomars tried to shake down the rank and file of his union for money to pay for his defense and appeals.

An undercover agent attended the union meeting, posing as a sympathizer with Lomars, who was depicted as a martyr to a frame-up by the greedy bosses.

He came away with a beautiful report of the proceedings.

This daring young man was killed in the war.

RECENTLY, Pross has been running a union of workers in plants manufacturing and shipping cosmetics.

One woman member alleged that in one of the factories a shop steward actually was working for the interests of the employer and selling out the workers.

She charged further that a business agent gave no account of the dues of $3 a month paid by the workers and was not affixing the regular 35-cent union dues stamps in the members' books, as required by the constitution, but was acknowledging payment with a rubber stamp.

She complained to the A. F. of L. in Washington and was fired by a New York union official for refusing to apologize.

Ben Pross is constantly prominent in A. F. of L. affairs in New York. He is a powerful man. He issues patriotic statements on appropriate occasions which echo the resounding bombast of William Green, himself, and are printed in the union papers as the utterances of a distinguished labor leader.

How Pross ever acquired control of his unions I do not profess to know.

This is one of those mysteries of the American Federation of Labor and the revelation of which is instantly denounced as labor-baiting and union-busting.

I once inquired at the national headquarters of the A. F. of L. in Washington for a complete roster of its unions, including its little so-called federal unions, and was turned down.

I then asked for copies of the constitutions of these unions and was told that I might see any constitution that I asked for specifically and read it and make notes from it then and there. But I could not have a copy for my own.

Obviously, without a roster it was impossible to ask for the constitutions of the unknown unions, but that was the stand taken that day by Phillip Pearl, the publicity agent for the A. F. of L. Some of the unions in New York are not even listed in the telephone book and many of those that are listed have identical phone numbers because groups of them are controlled by small gangs of racketeers.

Hollywood

By Dorothy Manners
Substituting for Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, April 25—Frank Sinatra kicks off on his new M-G-M contract in "It Happened in Brooklyn" co-starring with Kathryn Grayson and George Sidney directing.

Gene Kelly will be missing, but this is the same setup responsible for my favorite musical of last year (and yours, too, I bet), "Anchors Aweigh." Special music is being written for Frankie and Kathryn by Sammy Kahn and Julie Stein, and the picture starts in 30 days.

Frank Sinatra

There's one thing you bobby-soxers can count on: From here on, Frankie's pictures will come much closer together. With the exception of "The House I Live In," which was a short, he made only one film in 1945. That isn't enough to keep Frankie first in the hearts of his fanatics. This little matter will be remedied by starring Sinatra in two and perhaps three movies within the next 12 months.

DENNIS O'KEEFE is usually cast as a playboy or a comedian because he's plenty fast on the dialogue and wisecracks. So it's news that he will slow down to a Charles Boyer drawl in the first really romantic role he has ever played on the screen. O'Keefe's dramatics go into effect on May 4, when he steps in front of the cameras opposite Hedy Lamarr in "Dishonored Lady" in the role of the young doctor. The love scenes are just about burning up the script — and why not — they were written by Ben Hecht. Robert Stevenson is directing the Hunt Stromberg production.

IS GABRIEL PASCAL peddling some of the George Bernard Shaw properties which he controls? Looks that way—at least Taft Schreiber of the MCA office, has gone to England at Pascal's invitation to close a deal for Joseph Bernard and Milton Sperling to purchase at least two of Shaw's stories plus (they hope) the services of Deborah Kerr—the girl who was such a hit in "Vacation From Marriage." The two plays involved are "Arms and the Man" and "The Devil's Disciple" with Pascal stipulating that he will come to Hollywood to direct both stories when they are ready for screening.

THE FIRST PLAY angeled by Robert Montgomery and Elliott Nugent on Broadway this fall is "The Big Two" by L. Bush-Fekete and Mary Helen Fay. Bob won't star in it because it isn't up his street but he returns, with Nugent, to Broadway to sit in on the rehearsals just as soon as Elliott finishes directing "Welcome Stranger." It isn't true that Nugent is returning to "Voice of the Turtle" or will appear in "The Big Two." He's the man behind the scenes—just directing this one.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: The Crosby kids are raising the roof at the old family manse after reading the roles written in for them in "Welcome Stranger" which Bing and Dixie nixed. The sequence called for the kids to go fishing with their old man—and at fishing they are most proficient. When Bing still said "No," Gary yipped: "I bet if Bob Hope had four boys he'd let them play in that scene!" This almost floored Pappy—but he stuck to his story. The kids just can't do any more movies.

EDITH HEAD, who usually concentrates on glamor clothes for the Paramount charmers, does a right-about-face and will run up some snappy aprons and ginghams for Veronica Lake and Arleen Whelan in "Ramrod." Arleen plays the good gal and, as I told you a couple of days ago, Ronnie is the mischief-maker. It's Edith's first fling at frontier fashions—but don't forget—costume picture or no costume picture, Veronica has said she's going out for "best dressed" honors and she isn't taking any chances having anyone other than Edith run up her seams.

HOLLYWOOD IN SHORTS: Howard Hughes is now angling for Madison Square Garden—seating capacity 12,000—for the New York showing of "The Outlaw"; Mitch Leisen wants Marlene Dietrich for "Golden Earrings" and has cabled her in London about doing the picture; Red Skelton gave his husband-in-law (or what would you call the man who is married to your ex?) a 16-mm set, complete with projection machine and sound, for his birthday; Ralph Bellamy leaves the cast of "State of the Union" in June and is heading back to Hollywood for two movies; personal to Jack Benny: I wish you could have heard the grand things Louella Parsons said about you over the telephone yesterday. (Yes, she sneaked a call when her nurse's back was turned.) She is so happy and appreciative that you are going to appear on her radio show with Harriet Parsons next Sunday and she wants you to know it. She's so proud of her kid, too. You get a jump in your throat listening to her.

ARTHUR LUBIN can take his pick of three jobs because of his direction of "Night in Paradise"—a really gay picture that is a good lesson in the difference between sophistication and smut; Mary Pickford will be one of the guests of honor at the cinematographers dinner June 3; it looked like the barber shop quartet at the Brown Derby yesterday with Sinatra, Dick Haymes, Tony Martin and Dick Powell lunching there; Alan Jones, just back from Chicago, returns there immediately for two weeks at the Oriental Theater; June Duprez has herself a wonderful job with the American Repertoire Theater in New York, starting in August. Her first show is with Eve Le Galliene. That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Boston After Dark

BOSTONIANS CURRENTLY immersed in knotty problems of relative peace will come face to face again tonight with living reminders of the terrible Death March from Bataan when Maj. John J. Dugan, the Jesuit chaplain-hero of the Philippines, will be honored at a reception and banquet in the Copley Plaza main ballroom.

THE MODEST ARMY chaplain will be greeted by an overflow gathering of well-wishers, and the most energetic committee to handle such an affair since the war's end has arranged a tribute to Maj. Dugan which will not be forgotten quickly by those who attend . . . Abp. Cushing will extend the blessing of his and Maj. Dugan's church to the assemblage, and Sen. Walsh, Gov. Tobin, Mayor Curley and Cong. McCormack all have promised to attend . . . School committeeman Michael J. Ward will be toastmaster.

ENTERTAINMENT of the guests—apart from the efforts of the State's most distinguished political orators—will be of a high order, and a distinguished company of artists will represent many creeds and races . . . Georgie Price, the star of so many Broadway hits, accompanied by Joe Sinatra, the talented pianist of Jacques Renard's orchestra; Eddie and Lucille Roberts, the young wizards of lightning mental-responses, (or "mind-readers" as vaudeville used to classify such an act); Rene and Maarcya Gunsett, the wonderful dancers who came from France in 1940 to make their American debut right here in Boston, are appearing with the compliments of the Hotel Bradford management.

PAUL WINCHELL, the best ventriloquist playing the cabaret circuit and movie houses, will perform his voice-throwing wonders with the help of his impish dummy "Jerry", and from the Copley Plaza's Oval Room also — Mr. Winchell is current at the Oval Room—the fine dance team of Conselo and Melba are ready to exhibit their difficult and thrilling routines . . . The Music Box stars, Herb Lewis, Judy Tremaine, Rita Nagle, Matt Reilly and Bill Dewey's excellent cameo orchestra will be on hand . . . Pat Rooney, Jr., son of the other famous Rooney named Pat, will make the uptown jump from the gay Gay Nineties in the shopping district . . . Indicative of the spirit of tonight's event has been the whole-hearted response of these various young entertainers and the complete lack of "temperament" displayed by all of them.

ONE EXAMPLE was the decision by the two dance teams, the Gunsetts and Conselo and Melba, to be dressed and ready offstage just "in case" . . . For there could be no assurance from the committee today that there would be space in the large ballroom for dancers . . . The demand for tables has been so great that the throng may be too huge to permit clearance of sufficient floor-space for dancers to perferm.

THE ARTISTS from the Music Box—which is less than a block away from the Copley Plaza—were pleased to accept invitations to appear at Fr. Dugan's dinner but at the same time, cognizant of the committee's problem in having too much show for the time available, they were pleased also to inform the committee that they would yield the floor and rostrum to other artists who are more or less transient in Boston. (Artists at the Music Box are practically "permanent." An unusual feature of that popular spot is that once an entertainer catches on with the regular patrons, he or she becomes a long-run act automatically. Herb Lewis, for instance, has played Johnny Costello's famous supper room for more than a year. And 'way back in 1943, he enjoyed a lengthy run at the same stand).

Months in preparation, the "Fr. Dugan Dinner" assumed the aura of the most brilliant social and fraternal success staged in Boston since the Germans and Japs were routed in 1945.

NEW YORK, April 25—Peggy Hopkins Joyce tells friends she'll be much happier "when I get a divorce . . . Mrs. Max Gordon, wife of the "Born Yesterday" producer, is seriously ill . . . Maurice Chevalier is considering a South American tour at fabulous money better than $1000 a day . . . One of the gentlemen currently being suggested as a possible candidate for Congressman from Connecticut is an ex-bookie . . . Lana Turner's beau "Pete" Jaeger, will open a radio production company in Hollywood to be near her . . . Gene Kelly gets out of the Navy—officially—today. He reports to the cameras in a month . . . King Carol's fortune is being inflated via Wall Street investments . . . Joe Paterno, the Gotham playboy, is reported in difficulties over an auto accident in Nassau.

Lana Turner

FRANK SINATRA'S pseudonym at the Waldorf is "Bobby Byrnes" . . . Lots of heartache behind the impending split between a famous woman star and her young husband. Her love for him—a mile high—can't overcome his envy of her success and his resentment of his status as "her husband" . . . The Ben Blues expect two babies . . . Only three members of the Diamond Horseshoe show now talk to Lionel Kaye . . . Mrs. Will Rogers is out of the hospital after a minor operation . . . The Al Singers (he's the one-time prize ring star, she's Belle Baker of the cab family) will try matrimony again after 10 years apart . . . Another sleeping powder suicide was averted in Hollywood last week when the wife of a Hollywood director was rescued by the police as the result of a phone call.

INTIMATES SAY Oona O'Neill has a yen to play the heroine in Charlie Chaplin's forthcoming new production . . . Ahead in the Clark Gable sweepstakes as we go to press: Elizabeth Chisholm, blonde auto fortune heiress . . . Nanette Fabray and Jack Warner, Jr., plan to make it a June wedding on the West Coast . . . Ambassador Gromyko viewed "I Like It Here," the Bert Lytell-Oscar Karlweiss comedy, last Wednesday night, and appeared to like it there . . . New trend: A West 56th st dress shop will serve tea and cocktails to customers . . . Dusty Anderson writes New York friends that her marriage to director Jean Negulesco will be celebrated in June . . . Willie Bliff, the former West Coast labor biggie, won a fortune gambling in Mexico . . . Dave Wolper's sudden marriage to Hilna Perfit was the final chapter to a childhood romance. He ran into her in Florida when he was getting his divorce from Sylvia.

WASHINGTON, April 25—Life's blackest hours often prove to be the darkness just before the dawn. And so, in his time of greatest travail, comfort and solace have come to Paul Porter, head of the bruised, battered and bloody OPA.

Paul Porter

The balm, contrary to custom, did not come from Gilead but from Mr. Porter's niece, Mrs. Ruth Sheldon Knowles. Mrs. Knowles, who is forever dashing off to places like Venezuela, Addis Ababa, and Lower Antarctica to write snappy pieces about oil, is constantly thinking about her uncle's welfare—and he often wishes she would desist.

In this she is abetted by her husband, Mr. Carroll Knowles, who always wears a black homburg hat which makes him look like Anthony Eden. In the course of their travels they have become greatly interested in the ancient cultures of the Aztecs, Mayas and Incas, the latter apparently having been very oily people.

To assuage and alleviate the current woes of her uncle, caused by an obstreperous House of Representatives, Mrs. Knowles has discovered a wonderful poultice. She describes it in a letter to Mr. Porter—and if linotype operators go stark, staring mad trying to straighten it out, it will be only just retribution for what they have done to me in the past.

MEMBERS of the Sunday school class: The Epistle of Ruth to the Corinthians—I mean Mr. Porter:

"Uncle Paul Darling: We were recently presented with a copy of the Aztec Herbal of 1552, which is the earliest work on medicines in the Americas and which was written in Latin by two eminent Aztec Indians giving Aztec remedies and portraying the herbs from which they were made.

"In going through it we ran across a remedy which in view of your present harassment we think you might find useful. In case you have any difficulty in obtaining any of the ingredients don't hesitate to let us know and, due to our Mexican connections, we can be of help.

"The following is the translation from the Latin translated from Aztec:

" 'Trees and flowers for the fatigue of those administering the government and holding public office.'

" 'The bark of the Quetzalylin tree, of the flowers Eloxochitl, Yzquixochitl, of the almond with its fruit, which is Tlapalcacauil, the flowers Cacaloxochitl, Huacalxochitl, Tlilxochitl, Mecaxochitl, Hueynacaztli, and all good-smelling summer flowers, the leaves of the trees Ayiin, Oyametl, Ocotl, Axocotl, Hecapahtli, Tiacoyzquixochitl, Quahyyauhtli, Tomazquitl, Auatl, Tepeylin, Ayauhquahuitl and Tepapa - Qulitlquahuitl, flowering summer herbs with their stems, which you are to gather early in the morning, before the winds arise, are to be macerated in clear spring water, each by itself in a new pot or vessel, and this for one day and one night; then to them is to be added Huitzquahuitl, a wood of reddish sap to stain them.

"Likewise the blood of wild animals, ' namely Tlatlauhqui Ocelotl, Cuetlachtli, Miztli, Ocotochtli, Yztac Ocelotl, Tiaoocelotl, is to be sought, so that the body may be annointed with it together with the above-mentioned juices.'

" 'IN THE SECOND place, precious stones, Ouetzalytzli, Eztetl, Tlahcalhuatztn, Tetlahuitl, and white clay and little pebbles which are encountered in the stomachs of the small birds Huexocanauhtli, Huactil and Apopohtil, should be thrown into water, in which they should be left for one night that their healthful juice may be drawn out, with which the body should be frequently washed.

" 'Thirdly, it should be saturated with both the brain and the bill of the animals Tlatlauhqui Ocelotl, Yztac Ocelotl, Cuelachtli, Miztli, Ocotochtli, Coyotl, and then with the brain, bile and crushed bladder of the Yztacepatl. Indeed, these medicaments bestow the bodily strength of a gladiator, drive weariness far away, and finally drive out fear and fortify the human heart.

" 'In addition, a leading man or any one else, who wishes to obtain this rebuilding, should eat the flesh of a white rabbit or a white fox whelp, either roasted or boiled.' "

"THE VIRGINIAN," in its fourth time to go before the cameras with Joel McCrea in the title role, is pleasing Paramount and Fenway patrons whose capacity attendance is keeping it there a second week. Barbara Britton is co-star.

'Ziegfeld Follies,' 'Saratoga Trunk' on Screens Here

Two of the season's most pretentious productions . . . MGM's all-star "Ziegfeld Follies" and "Saratoga Trunk," Warners' handsome adaptation of Edna Ferber's lusty best-seller teaming Gary Cooper and Ingrid Bergman . . . open on neighboring screens today.

Heading the cast of the technicolorful "Ziegfeld Follies of 1946," now showing on Loew's twin screens, are such boxoffice stalwarts as Fred Astaire, Edward Arnold, Lucille Ball, Edward Arnold, Lucille Bremer, Fanny Brice, Judy Garland, Kathryn Grayson, Lena Horne, Gene Kelly, James Melton, Victor Moore, William Powell, Red Skelton, Keenan Wynn and Esther Williams.

Highlight of the revue numbers include Astaire and Miss Bremer's "Limehouse Blues" fantasy as well as the great screen scoop—the teaming of Astaire with Gene Kelly in the George Gershwin number, "Babitt and Bromide." A musical highlight is the streamlined version of the famous Brindisi aria from "La Traviata," featuring Metropolitan Opera star James Melton, Marion Bell and the Ziegfeld Girls, Esther Williams, a star of a novel and fantastic under-water ballet, is another.

Judy Garland, who kids herself and her screen star sister in a skit called "The Interview," is still another. While clouds of irridescent bubbles foam into an Arabian Night fable for a smashing number, with Kathryn Grayson sings "Beauty Is Everywhere." These, and many other, feature the more than 20 sketches, with comedy by Miss Brice, Moore and Skelton.

The Met's current attraction, "Saratoga Trunk," is set against the background of languorous New Orleans in the early 70's and the brawling, flashy holiday town of Saratoga. The film traces the saga of a rough-hewn man of the West and a magnificent Creole beauty, drawn irresistibly together, who form a strange partnership for riches against the world.

Sam Wood directed the Hal Wallis production.

'Henry V' Seen Educational

Laurence Olivier's technicolor film production, "Henry V," the United Artists release which had its American premiere at the Esquire Theater, is currently being accorded unusual approval of numerous contingents of the Hub's university circles.

Boston's High Manor Junior College has made attendance at "Henry V" a required subject for the English course there. A Jesuit college is giving 36-point credits in its students' English course for compositions on the same subject.

This Shakespearian classic, which has frequently been compared to "a colorful section of medieval tapestry come to life," is being presented on a road show basis. Two performances are given daily, with all seats reserved.

Professor Spencer of Harvard University, a director of the Cub Scout movement in Cambridge, became so enthusiastic over the educational potentialities of the picture that he imbued his youthful followers with the same spirit. He encouraged the youngsters to stage a waste paper collection campaign, by means of which they raised a fund totaling $135. This sum was spent for tickets to "Henry V" by the youngsters and their juvenile friends.

BILL AT LAFFMOVIE

Laurel and Hardy in "The Bohemian Girl," the Balfe operetta that has delighted several generations of playgoers, are to be seen at the Laffmovie Theater screen currently. Other program items are "On Again, Off Again," with Shemp Howard; "Wedtime Story," with Leon Errol; "Busy Bakers," latest Merrie Melody cartoon, and a Walt Disney cartoon, "Old MacDonald Duck."

Hobby Exhibit at Tea

ALMOST EVERYONE has a hobby of collecting something or other, from stamps to china pigs, so socialite hobbyists are keen about the idea of seeing each other's collections at the interesting tea at Mrs. John W. Grundy's in Milton next Tuesday. It is to be a silver tea to benefit Faulkner Hospital Aid and will feature hobby collections such as Miss Lucy Morse's rosaries from all over the world, Miss Dorothy Gordon's rare Chinese art objects and Miss Christine Ferry's English crewel embroidery.

Also attracting the admiration of guests will be arts and crafts by Mrs. Raymond Higgins and Mrs. Charles W. Roberts and Miss Greta Allen's portraits. The pourers will be Mrs. Frank Winsor, Mrs. R. Perry Collins, Mrs. Thomas Motley, Mrs. Ernest Graumann, Mrs. Charles Newcomb and Mrs. Woodbury Sieverts.

E. Mutual Hall. After the lecture Mrs. Bacon is giving a tea at her lovely Commonwealth ave. home so that members of the Mass. committee can meet Canon Williams who served as chaplain on the Wasp and holds many awards for valor.

The cathedral was built half a century ago, founded on the desire of George Washington to have a national place of worship.

Letendre

have had many financial dealings with the victim. It was also remembered by detectives that it was on a Chicago boulevard that Edward J. O'Hare, nationally known horse and dog track king, once of Dighton, was blasted to death in a manner identical with this Woonsocket killing.

Suits heard in court April 16, six days before Letendre died, had been hanging fire ever since Jan. 10, 1944. They are known to have no connection with his ultimate death, but investigators are interested since they show one angle of his many operations.

One suit was brought in the name of the late Joseph E. Kelley, of Smithfield, R. I., and claims Letendre never made good on a promissory note of $5200. Another suit was for $1500 allegedly owed the Fairmount Dye Works of Woonsocket, an outfit in which Kelly was a big stockholder.

Through these suits the plaintiffs never could discover anything attachable. Letendre was the victor in both cases, but on Tuesday, less than 24 hours after he was shot to death, motion for a new trial was filed. The plaintiff claimed "new and material evidence had been unearthed which could not have been discovered before."

Inspectors now are slowly beginning to unveil many operations in which the victim borrowed large sums. He spent freely, gambled big and like most in that fraternity either was bulging with cash or was looking around for a loan to recoup.

What they seek from his financial records is an accounting to show about how he stood when he was blasted to death. He is known to have carried many of his financial dealings "in his head" or "in his pockets" and progress has been slow. If secret bank accounts and safe deposit boxes exist the probers have not yet caught up with them.

Hunt for cash and for documentary evidence extended to Boston today, with Massachusetts State and local police trying to locate possible assets.

Two investigators were expected to fly to Miami, Fla., to probe Letendre's extensive gambling interests there. The present theory is that his dealings with Chicago and Detroit syndicates led to the plot to eliminate him from the race and gaming world.

Names of the two officers were not disclosed, but their assignment following a lengthy conference of officials behind closed doors. Attending the conference were Mayor Ernest E. Dupre, Police Chief Edgar C. Turcotte, Deputy Chief Leo J. Vanasse, Capt. Leo Gartsu, head of the vice and homicide squad; Capt. Wilfred J. Messier and several unidentified State and Providence police officials.

Fingerprints which may be those of the gunman who fired the fatal shots were found on the beach wagon in which Letendre was slain, and have been sent to Washington for identification. This, and the finding of a witness who claims to have heard a brief but bitter talk between the assassin and victim, lasting about 2" seconds, were other late developments in the sensational slaying.

The identity and present whereabouts of the witness is being closely guarded, and officials were almost as reticent about the finger prints, which left a record that may prove as good as a confession. The prints were found on the left door handle and on the door panel of the vehicle.

In the newest attempt to find the murder weapon, street department employes dredged four sewers at the intersection where the victim was riddled with bullets. No gun was discovered but five horse race slips, dated March 26, 1946, were taken from the muck. The bets were small and the slips—all losers—apparently had been dropped in the sewer by an unlucky bettor.

Despite a denial by James P. Morley, son-in-law of the slain man and manager of the Blackstone Hotel, that Letendre had been connected with gambling casinos in Florida during the past season, police were in receipt of information that during the 1944-45 season, Letendre positively was connected with the La Boheme Club near Hollywood, a Miami suburb and had other extensive gambling interests.

Officials explained, however, that the La Boheme club the past winter had operated only a bar and night club show, but that there were other larger gaming places which occupied Letendre's interest. He also was said to have been a frequent visitor to the Hialeah, Gulfstream and Tropical racetracks.

Particularly under investigation is Letendre's business dealings in Florida with gamblers connected not only with Florida resorts, but also with Detroit and Chicago mobsters. It was one of these connections, police assert, that led to events culminating in Letendre's violent death.

This is supported by comments of local friends and acquaintances of the victim when they heard of the slaying, according to police. These friends informed investigators they had heard Letendre was having difficulties with a powerful gambling syndicate which invaded Florida after the end of prohibition.

Authorities discounted the report that Letendre was slain because he accepted $35,000 to bet on a Narragansett race last Saturday and failed to make the plunge. This rumor pictured Letendre as trying to outguess the race and refusing to bet a 10-to-1 shot for a gambling syndicate because he had more faith in an odds-on choice.

Police point out that such odds do not show up on any race on the Saturday card and term the story that "Big Jack" could not make good $350,000 as "just someone's dream."

Officials said that the ramifications behind the crime are so involved and complex that the investigation may take weeks before any definite results are obtained.

Letendre's brief conversation with his killer took place under the bright rays of an arc light at the corner of Spring and Prospect sts., where his beach wagon was halted. Officials disclosed some new information on this.

They said the big, black Cadillac sedan first followed, then shot ahead of Letendre's car, forcing him over towards the curbstone. As he brought his car to a stop Letendre rolled down the glass panel to protest.

From the sedan a man stepped out and ran to the side of Letendre's car. There, the conversation took place in which Letendre, exploding expletives in English and French, defied the gunman.

He stepped on the accelerator to continue to his home, the gunman jerked open the door and three shots rang out. The car, out of control, then lurched toward the gunman and, to save himself he threw out his hand and pushed himself away as it rested on the door. This left the second mark of his fingerprints, according to the police.

Then the sedan roared up Prospect st., past the Letendre home and out of sight in the direction of the Massachusetts line.

Police also have a second witness who saw the killer race back to the sedan after the shooting. Whether either of these witnesses got a look at the gunman which would enable them to identify him, could not be learned.

Woonsocket detectives bound for Miami expected to visit the $300,000 La Boheme night club and hotel and talk with attendants there.

Meantime, the body of the murdered man rests in a mahogany and steel casket at his Prospect st. home where friends and neighbors gathered to pay him final tribute. His widow was reported to be prostrate from grief and shock.

A checkup of the 37 guests registered at the Blackstone hotel, one of Letendre's properties which he left on his fatal homeward ride, cleared all of any connection with the case, police said.

"About a year ago," said Morley, "because of his numerous enterprises Mr. Letendre told members of his family he planned to distribute some of the holdings among them. For some reason he never did it.

"Last Friday he told me he was going to see his counsel, Atty. John R. Higgins of Woonsocket, and have his will drawn, making at that time the transfers of property he had discussed a year previously. There was no significance to this because he had the matter on his mind a year.

"He went to see Atty. Higgins who asked if there was any hurry as he had to go to New York on business and Mr. Letendre said it could wait. If he had any premonition he was the type who would have insisted that it be done right away."

Garden Forum

By FOSTER H. WEISS

Head of the Vegetable Gardening Dept., Norfolk County Agricultural School

Q—Is it safe to use DDT on vegetables?

A—Not in all cases. As yet we do not know too much about DDT as to its effect on humans, so it will be well to keep it off of any edible parts of plants. On potatoes it has given good results on flea beetles and leafhoppers. It should be applied every 2 to 3 weeks as the plants grow.

Q—What causes small root hairs to form on parsnips?

A—This is an indication that the plant which has been more or less dormant during the winter months is starting to grow. This will not affect the quality at first, but as the season advances, it will cause the root to lose its flavor.

Q—When is the best time to set out strawberry plants, spring or fall?

A—Spring is usually considered best as this gives the plant a chance to get runners established. As the fruit buds form in late August, you cannot expect much of a crop from fall-set plants.

Q—What is meant by blind blossoms on cucumbers? Should they be picked off?

A—Blind blossoms on vine crops are the male flowers and are necessary if you expect good pollination. These crops have individual male and female flowers and are insect pollinated. Do not remove these blossoms.

Q—How should the lawn mower be set for spring cutting?

A—Set the mower so that it cuts close in the spring. This leaves the grass short and stocky which is an advantage in controlling weeds.

Q—Is it best to run rows the long way or short way of the garden?

A—From a labor standpoint, long rows are better, but in small gardens, it is easier to take care of short rows and gives more chance for variety.

Joe McCarthy--Or One Against the World

By AUSTEN LAKE

JOE McCARTHY LICKED DOWN the loose flap of his cigar. "The world is against us," he said contentedly. "The world and seven other clubs in the American League."

Austen Lake

For a man with as large a load as the two hemispheres on his back, the florid, blocky manager of the Yankees seemed serene. "We come to Boston," said Joe hypothetically, "and they throw Tex Hughson and Bo Ferriss at us—their best. We go to Cleveland and they give us Feller. Wherever the Yankees go the other clubs lead with their aces. We've got to be good to win any pennants."

That makes sense! And why shouldn't the other seven teams train their heaviest guns on the Yanks. The Yankee-Newark-Kansas City axis has dominated the American League like Berlin, Rome and Tokio used to bully the world. There has to be a coalition of weaker groups to save the world and World Series from being a monopoly.

No Dollar Domination

"PHOOEY," SCOFFED McCARTHY, "That isn't the American way. Equal opportunity, that's our slogan. They used to scream about Ruppert's millions buying whole flocks of pennants. But what about the Yawkey millions and the Briggs' millions and the Bradley millions? Our money wasn't any better than theirs. And did they yell dollar domination when Connie Mack—a compartively poor man, won his three consecutive pennants in '29, '30 and '31? Did they shout for him to bust up his ball club to make the race more level?"

Through his nostrils McCarthy snorted forked jets of smoke. He was mildly annoyed. "Somebody wrote in a paper 'The Yankees are a blight on baseball! Bust 'em up for the good of the game! And then others pick up. Did Joe Louis kill boxing? Did Man O'War kill racing? Has Byron Nelson killed golf?"

"Look," said Joe, slightly aroused, "we got a string of farms and maybe 400 ball players. So've the Red Sox. Every club in the league's got a string of breed farms and a herd of scouts fanning the bushes. What's our magic they haven't got? Luck? If so, don't worry about the Yankees or any ball clubs dominating baseball, because luck changes like the Boston weather. But don't let anybody say, "Make the leading ball clubs come down to the level of the other teams. Let 'em come up to us."

There's no danger that the American League will never force the top clubs to parcel their stars piecemeal among the lesser firms to equalize action. Because some years ago when the raggety Red Sox were the Leagues' footstool, I asked Pres. Will Harridge what he proposed to do to save Boston as a No. 1 money town. "Nothing," said Harridge a bit primly. "Not a thing! The league is no welfare organization. We can't ask successful operators to donate part of their profits, either in player stocks or cash resources, to the failing ones. It's a wolf eat wolf game."

"Anyway," said McCarthy. "The war has levelled the teams off. There isn't a soft spot on the circuit. The run to October will find four or five teams bunched. Just watch."

Recently during a flying visit to his Massachusetts birth place, Mickey Cochrane remarked. "Look't the Yankees. There's a manager's paradise. McCarthy's in baseball's heaven. All he's had to do is make out the batting order and pick his pitchers and he's through for the day. The rest of the time he can sit on the bench, smile and draw $40,000."

Joe grinned his genial pussycat smile and deigned to say nothing. Cochrane's was not an indictment of McCarthy, who holds the composite respect of everybody, but of baseball's system of managerial hirings and firings on the basis of league standings.

The Team to Beat

"THE YANKEES ARE ALWAYS the team to beat." I suggested. "Sure they are," said Joe, "and the other clubs take particular delight in doing it. Betcha right here in Boston the fans'd rather see us licked than any other. Okay by us! But the game's no bed of posies for any manager. All that has to happen is for DiMaggio to hurt his bad knee again. Or Joe Gordon to pull a tendon, or one of my pitchers to go sour. It happens to some club every year. Then through no fault of my own I wouldn't be a good manager, huh?"

McCarthy has that first and most important requisite. He knows how to handle men, how to keep them welded in a unit rather than an unrelated collection of individuals. Under his Santa Claus mask and the cozy, corner-cuddling way that he has of sitting like a human tabby cat in hotel lobbies, he's a tough tyke with lots of bone in his jaw. When he finds he cannot merge a player's private ambition into the general team spirit, he arranges for speedy disposal, having first demonstrated his sterness in this regard when he fired the great Grover Cleveland Alexander from the Chicago Cubs.

Did Joe think that Ted Williams could capture the popular imagination like Babe Ruth held it? Joe hedged. "Aw, he isn't one of my players," he grumbled. Did he have any special method of pitching to the Kid," like Clark Griffith's suggestion to serve a steady diet of soft "bloopers"? "That's corn syrup," said Joe. "The best we can do is not to give him any fat pitches and keep him off stride. If he has a weak spot I wish somebody'd tell us. We don't know it."

Was Joe satisfied with his pennant prospects? "No, he said. "No manager ever think's he's got enough. We're a greedy bunch. But I ain't kickin.' Anyhow you don't win pennants by talking in April newspapers."

McCarthy was no longer annoyed. He rolled his cigar happily between his lips and gazed from the hotel window toward the high back of the Fenway bleachers. The man who is supposed to be in baseball's 7th heaven where only the angels are higher, stood up in his green striped pajamas and yawned. He looked at his watch. "It's time," he said, "to go out and see how good we are."

Jury Acquits Durocher

NEW YORK, April 25 (AP)—Leo Durocher, Brooklyn manager, today was acquitted by an all-male jury of a charge of second-degree assault against a 23-year-old Dodger fan. Joseph Moore, 50-year-old special guard at Ebbets Field and a co-defendant with Durocher, also was acquitted. John Christian, a war veteran, had said the two men beat him in an encounter under the Ebbets Field grandstand after a Brooklyn-Philadelphia game last June 9. Both defendants claimed he fell.

The jury was out 38 minutes. When they returned, German Shapiro, the foreman, told the court:

"We have unanimously decided that Mr. Durocher is not guilty. We also decided that Mr. Moore is not guilty."

Judge Louis Goldstein told the jury that "I regard your verdict as a fair and just one, and added:

"I am glad for the sake of the Brooklyn baseball team that their manager has been vindicated and that no discredit has been placed upon the great American game of baseball."

While the jury was out Durocher sat and talked with Walter F. O'Malley, Dodger secretary. The manager was calm when he stood up to hear the jury's verdict. Spectators in the courtroom, who had been warned against making any demonstration, took the verdict quietly.

But immediately upon adjournment, the Brooklyn faithful cheered time and again. Many rushed up to Durocher to shake his hand or pound him on the back.

The Dodger manager left the courtroom hurriedly. He and his attorneys previously had said they would have no comment on the outcome of the trial.

A crowd of laughing, exultant admirers followed Durocher from the court, jamming the court corridors and elevators. One elderly woman burst into tears of joy as she went along with the crowd.

The jurors told reporters that they reached their verdict on the first ballot. Christian charged the two men beat him under the grandstand at Ebbets Field at a Brooklyn-Philadelphia game last June 9. Durocher says his heckler just "fell down" after talking to him and to Moore.

The case went to the jury on the fourth day of the trial after a 63-minute charge by Judge Louis Goldstein. He emphasized that it was necessary for the prosecution to prove guilt beyond a reasonable doubt and that the prosecution also must establish the defendants' "specific intent to commit grievous bodily harm."

Williams vs. Fans Feud Revived

By HUCK FINNEGAN

The feud is on! It's Williams vs. the fans again, and is that going to lead to a pennant? Mayhap it's a good thing the Sox are leaving for Philly tonight. It'll give everybody a chance to forgive and forget the mid-week game with the Yanks. (They close today with a 3 o'clock game.)

Williams hit into three successive double plays in that 12-5 loss to the Yanks. The score might have been Sox 22, Yanks 12 had he hit as advertised. The story might have been different had somebody covered home plate on Rizzuto's grounder to Pellagrini in the fourth. The Sox indeed might have won had not York been trapped off second base in the sixth with nobody out and the Sox only three runs behind. (Was he told to hold up?)

So it's all blamed on Williams. It's hardly fair. The Kid has done his fair share of hitting. His outfielding has been adequate. It was only last Sunday that he was applauded to the high heavens after he caught Kell's fly and doubled McQuinn at the plate. And that very day he singled home the winning run.

Oh, I suppose anybody who gets $35,000 a year ought to be castigated once in a while, especially when he's surrounded by ball players who get much less. But, and not to digress, don't you think the pitching, or lack of it, had something to do with the outcome of the game. Pitching it was said here would decide the Sox position in the pennant race.

But there is no defense for loafing, and Williams seemed to loaf on Keller's single. Nobody is trying to protect Williams. It should be said, however, that he came back from the service trying to be friends with "everybody. He even tipped his cap after making a home run. Honest!

He had a bad day to be true, but it was his first. If you're a married man, however, you might understand. His wife has been in the hospital for several days. He's worried about her.

"I live in the Sheraton with him," said Eddie Doherty, "and he's up every morning at 7:30 to visit her."

"Why didn't you announce it?" asked John Gillooly. "The crowd might have extended a sympathetic hand instead of giving him the moo-cow."

"He didn't want it that way," Doherty replied. "He's asking no favors from nobody."

Nobody seemed to remember that Joe DiMaggio and Stuffy Stirnweiss had a worse day at the bat than Williams. Both went hitless in six trips to the plate, and both, like Williams, have led the A. L. in hitting. By the way, didn't Williams hit a triple?

Mrs. Ted 'Better'

Ted Williams' wife, who was operated upon last Monday, was reported to be "resting comfortably and feeling better" this morning. Her doctor said that the operation was a complete success and that he expected her to be well enough to leave the hospital within ten days.

Sox Cut Two More

Pitching Still No. 1 Problem

Otis Clark and Danny Doyle have been optioned to Louisville by the Red Sox. Clark is a control pitcher. Doyle is a catcher of parts and a former all-American basketball player from Oklahoma Aggies. He can throw with anybody in the business. The Sox still have Wagner, Pytlak, McGah and Partee behind the bat.

Will the Sox ever have pitching? That is the No. 1 question being asked in the press box day after day. Pennock, Berg, Shacht, Shellenback, Daly, Woodall and Baker, all supposed to be pitching experts, have been associated with the club, but there seems to be no improvement. "Don't lose your head over one game," cautioned Phil Troy.

No. 2 question in the press box is: "Why does Nick Etten hit A. L. pitching, when he couldn't hit for the last place Phillies?" Etten hit .264 for the Phillies in '42, had only 41 RBI. In '43 with the Yanks, he batted in 107 runs. In '44 he led the A. L. in homers. (22). In '45, he led the league in RBI (111). "National Leaguers keep the ball low," said Mike McNamee, but the best answer it seemed, was supplied by Murray Kramer: "Environment," Kramer explained. "He's as good as his team-mates." His teammates are pretty good. Gordon is great, Rizzuto a 5-7 superman. Henrich is a far better ball player than averages show. Robinson will hit 20 home runs if he catches half the Yanks' games. Stirnweiss never will be supplanted by Johnson, a prewar sensation. The Yanks, in short, are the Notre Dame of the baseball world. They might get licked once in a while but they keep bouncing back, more resilient than ever. They always give it that old college try. They have the Sox licked in that department. In fact, it looks as if they have the Sox scared. That takes in four games in the South, too.

Tex Hughson hasn't yet pitched one of Hughson's games. Neither has Dave Ferriss. So today, Cronin scratched Ferriss off the starting list and substituted Joe Dobson. Ferriss lost five of his 11 losing games to the Yanks last year . . . York's tremendous homer in the second ordinarily would be enough margin for Hughson to work on. He couldn't hold it.

FINNEGAN

Grid Yanks Still Hope for Bertelli

Lt. Angelo Bertelli of the Marines, former Notre Dame All-American back, may play for the Boston pro grid Yanks, it was learned today. Bertelli, in Springfield on terminal leave, was supposed to be headed for the Los Angeles club in the new All league. But Ted Collins of the Yanks is prepared to match any offer from the rival circuit, and has hopes of winding up with Bertelli.

Braves Need Better Pitchers, Clean-Up Hitter

By BILL GRIMES

NEW YORK, April 25—The Braves were lucky to break their three game losing streak against the Giants, but Manager Billy Southworth cannot be expected to win with any degree of consistency with the Braves' current pitching corps. He doesn't miss many tricks handling the Tribe, but he must have an ace within his reach, when confronted with an enemy uprising such as the Giants staged in the eighth frame.

Ed Wright, starting Braves' hurler, was covered with horse shoes through the first three rounds. He was constantly behind the batters and, as a result, was forced to "come in there" with pitches that the Giants really belted.

"Whitey" Wietelmann probably prevented the Ottmen from scoring a flock of runs in the second inning, when he raced back and picked Babe Young's "blooper" out of the air, with no one out and Walker Cooper on his way to third. "Whitey's" throw to Ray Sanders doubled up the younger Cooper by a wide margin.

In the next round, after a Buddy Kerr line single, Dave Koslo laid down a perfect sacrifice bunt, on which "Skippy" Roberge made a fine play and threw to "Whitey" in time to force Kerr. Then Ray Sanders converted a hard grounder off Bill Rigney's bat into an inning ending double play.

Another "D. P.," this one started by Connie Ryan, saved trouble in the seventh, but, in the next round, there was nothing his Wright's teammates could do to check the Giants, a single, a two-bagger, a long fly sent a run across, and a homer by Johnny Mize into the right field stands did plenty of damage.

It is very apparent that the Braves are not getting the pitching. They lost the second game of the campaign to the Dodgers at Braves Field because of Wright's ineffectiveness and an error by Dick Culler. Large John Hutchings was a "cousin" to the Phillies in last Sunday's nightcap. Jimmy Wallace weakened in Brooklyn on Monday and blew the two-run lead he took into the ninth frame. Mort Cooper was hit hard and frequently by the Dodgers on Tuesday, but that was of little importance for the Braves didn't have a Chinaman's chance to win against Ed Head's no-hit-no-run brand of pitching.

Although little has been said or written about his stand on the matter, Southworth has been yelling for pitchers all spring. He knows the Braves cannot make even a creditable showing with their current hurling staff and no worthwhile cleanup hitter in the lineup.

Iron Man Hayes' Sub Ticketed For Stardom

(AP)—Unless all signs fail, young John Sherman Lollar, Cleveland's rookie backstop who was the big reason for Manager Lou Boudreau's decision to rest Frankie Hayes after the veteran catcher had extended his record-breaking consecutive game streak to 312, appears headed for major league stardom.

The soft-spoken 21-year-old native of Fayetteville, Ark., followed his own recipe yesterday when in his first starting role with the Indians, he doubled with the bases loaded to clear the sacks, highlighting a five-run eighth inning rally which gave the Tribe a 5-1 victory over the St. Louis Browns.

Lollar began his professional career in just about the same manner. It was in the 1944 International League opener that Lollar, then a 19-year-old youth making his debut with the Baltimore Orioles, smashed a homer with the bases loaded in his first pro game.

In addition to his double yesterday, Lollar smacked a single in three official trips to the plate and handled the slants of Charles (Red) Embree, his old Baltimore battery mate, perfectly. He accepted nine chances cleanly including two assists.

The victory, while leveling the Indians' won and lost record to an even 500, failed to advance them from their fourth place position behind the New York Yankees, Detroit and the Boston Red Sox.

Brooklyn and the Cardinals continued their merry battle for first place in the National League as each team won its seventh straight after blowing in the season's opener. The Dodgers routed the Phils, 11-3, for their 12th consecutive win in Shibe Park.

The Redbirds won their second straight 3-2 game from Cincinnati, with Stan Musial again driving in the winning run. Southpaw Howie Pollet, although tagged for nine safe blows, was credited with his second victory of the season.

Truett (Rip) Sewell, an old nemesis of the Chicago Cubs, tamed the Bruins again with a nine-hitter in pitching the Pirates to a 4-3 decision over the National League champions. It was Sewell himself who batted in the winning run when his eighth inning single broke a 3-3 deadlock.

Held scoreless for seven rounds, Washington rallied for four runs in its half of the eighth to overcome a 1-0 deficit and defeat the Athletics 4-2.

Suffolk Stock Rockets to $300

Suffolk Downs stock hit a new high today when it skyrocketed to $300 a share. There was some stock offered for sale at $325 but the last sale was at $300. This places a value of $9,000,000 on the track.

Aldred Investment Trust, which controls the majority of the shares, has been ordered by Judge George Sweeney of the federal court to dispose of its interest in the track at public auction on May 1.

Atty. Henry Leen, counsel for the owners of the controlling interest in the common stock of Aldred Investment Trust, insists that with the appreciation in the market value of Suffolk Downs and of 59,000 shares of Gillette stock that the trust is solvent, and that if it were to pay off all of its bonded indebtedness and set aside money for taxes that there would be more than $1,000,000 left.

Atty. Leen stated he might take some new court action in an effort to stop the sale.

Bobby Ahearn, publicity director for Bill Kyne who manages Bay Meadows, has arrived in Boston. He stated Atty. William Hornblower, representing Kyne, will arrive here tomorrow and that Kyne will be in Boston on Monday prepared to bid more than $2,000,000 for control of Suffolk Downs.

Marathon Victor Regains Jersey

A sentimental souvenir hunter has returned the missing jersey to Stylianos Kyriakides, winner of the B.A.A. marathon, while expressing sorrow for the trouble he caused in lifting the shirt from the clubhouse Saturday.

An anonymous letter, with a Lowell postmark, accompanied the jersey.

Classically, Kyriakides announced: "I thank and forgive."

Brown Player Quits Mexicans

MURRAY, Ky., April 25 (INS) Another American baseball player who found himself dissatisfied with the Mexican League despite the lure of ibg money was back home today—a signed member of the St. Louis Browns.

He is Hillman Lyons, who announced several weeks ago that he had decided to accept an $8000 a year contract and $5000 bonus offer from the Mexican League.

Lyons, a catcher, went to Mexico, but returned to Murray yesterday and explained:

"I talked to the Pasquel brothers in Mexico, and everything was satisfactory, but it didn't seem like home."

The 23-year-old former Marine said he had signed with the Browns and would report to their Mayfield, Ky.* farm club.

B's Like NY Schoolboy; Kluttz Cards-Bound

NEW YORK, April 24—We understand that Clyde Kluttz, who had been on the Giants' payroll for almost a year, will soon be shipped to the Cardinals . . . The story is that he was to go to the Mound City as soon as Walker Cooper was released from the Navy . . . There were eleven ex-members of the Cards' "Chain Gang" in uniform yesterday at the Polo Grounds, Mgr. Southworth, Mort Cooper, Johnny Hopp, Carden Gillenwater, Ray Sanders, Johnny Cooney and Bob Keely of the Braves and Johnny Mize, Walker Cooper, Clyde Kluttz and Bob Blattner of the Giants.

To date, Mort Cooper is the only Braves' pitcher, who has seriously tried to pick runners off second and third base . . . Pickoffs, especially at third base, are Southworth's pet plays, and he's burning up because his hurlers are not co-operating. Just as soon as the opportunity presents itself, Southworth will see to it that all his pitchers devote one full morning to pick off plays . . . Johnny Cooney, who was stricken with a stomach ailment Sunday night, is back on the job but Jimmy Wallace, the young and promising left-handed pitcher, is on the hospital list with a sore throat and a heavy cold . . . He might have been ailing Monday when he weakened in the ninth inning against the Dodgers.

Steve Andresti, a 16-year-old infielder from the Grove Cleveland High School, Queens, made a good impression while working out with the Braves yesterday . . . He has been offered, according to his own admission, baseball scholarships by Holy Cross and the University of Pennsylvania . . . He's a third baseman and wears glasses . . . Although he was belted for ten hits by the Dodgers, Cooper proved conclusively that there's nothing the matter with his arms . . . Frank Shellenback, former Red Sox coach, is the acting manager of the Detroit Tigers, during the absence of Steve O'Neil, who is undergoing treatment for an old knee injury in a Chicago hospital.

"Whitey" Wietelmann had a great day for himself, getting "four for five" and featuring defensively . . . He's now hitting .357 . . . "Skippy" Roberge was charged with his first error yesterday . . . It was his 30th chance but he came up with two hits and is batting .310 . . . Bama Rowell is hitting only .167 . . . He must show a decided and immediate improvement with the willow to hold a regular berth . . . Already Don Hendrickson has failed in two relief jobs . . . Bill "Porthole" Posedel can stop rallies and will have the call over Hendrickson from now on . . . The Giants aren't going anywhere as long as Bill Marshall is playing right field . . . "Buster" Maynard is a far better ball player than Marshall will ever be.

Yanks Possess Power To Beat Sox for Flag

By JACK CONWAY

YOU MAY HANG up the Yanks' number and flash the red official . . . The payoff will not come until October, but the men of Joe McCarthy convinced the great crowd that turned out to see their first game with the Red Sox at Fenway Park that they have what it takes to win a pennant . . . Pitching fellows like Gumpert and Marshall against the Sox and holding Chandler in reserve it did not look as if Joe McCarthy was trying his best . . . With Tex Hughson on the mound for Joe Cronin's outfit, it appeared as if the Sox were a 3 to 1 shot to win.

Joe McCarthy

Our odds appeared justified when Rudy York conked one into the center field bleachers near the flagpole for a home run with one on . . . Then the Yanks started their own offensive and surged into the lead . . . "The Sox and Yanks are great offensive ball clubs," I remarked to Col. Dave Egan . . . "It looks like a Dempsey-Firpo battle," replied the Colonel . . . The Colonel might have added that the Yanks played the part of Dempsey and delivered the kayo wallop.

It was not a day for those great thumpers, Joe DiMaggio and Ted Williams . . . While Williams came through with one lusty triple, he had the bad luck to three times hit into double-plays . . . DiMaggio did not do as well . . . His best smash was a terrific drive almost to the center field fence which Brother Dom pulled down in spectacular style . . . Joe didn't have to do any hitting for the Yanks to win . . . Nick Etten, Charley Keller, "Flash" Gordon and other batters who do not receive as much attention as DiMaggio took care of things.

The pitching of the Sox and Yanks was equally bad . . . Errors added to the burden of the Sox flingers . . . Then there were instances when the Sox players did not think too quickly and gave the Yanks opportunities to score . . . The scorers do not make notations of errors of omission . . . If they did they would have been obliged to have penalized Pellagrini, York and Hughson.

Wonder how Joe McCarthy felt as he scrambled around his pitchers in order to win? . . . There were years when the Yanks had three or four top flingers and they worked in order . . . As Joe Cashman recently remarked, "the Yanks have a lot of pitchers named Joe" . . . The Yanks will bank on their power to offset the lack of good pitching . . . Perhaps the Sox will fare better today . . .

JOHNNY CESARIO, North End lightweight, will rely upon his left hand when he opposes Dave Andrews of Lowell in a ten-round bout at a Goodwin A. C. show at the Arena tomorrow night . . . Cesario has shown vast improvement with his left duke as was so evident in his winning tussle with George LaRover.

If Cesario wins over Andrews, he will demand a return bout with Gus Mell . . . These boxers have met twice . . . In the first tussle, Mell won easily, but in the second skirmish Cesario was given a draw . . . There were many fans who witnessed the bout who were of the opinion that Cesario should have been given the verdict.

Andrews has won his last three bouts by kayos and he is confident that he will upset Cesario.

Nick Stato of Springfield will have Jimmy McLarnin as an opponent in the semi-final of eight rounds . . . Roy Andrews, brother of Dave, will oppose Steve Bellue, Toronto, in one of the sixes . . . In other sixes, Jimmy Sauer of Cambridge will meet Jimmy Pettie of Woburn, while Frankie Ross of the North End, who was a sensation in boxing bouts at West Palm Beach, Fla. and at Miami during the winter, will take on Johnny Wood of Manchester . . .

Veterans to Benefit

A LARGE share of the receipts from the title wrestling bout between Steve Casey and Frank Sexton, champion, which will be staged at the Arena tonight under the direction of Paul Bowser, will be turned over to the Post Office Post No. 10 of the American Disabled Veterans . . . It is expected that one of the largest crowds of the season will turn out to see if Casey can win back the title he lost to Sexton at the Arena last June.

Cy Hyde started the veterans' fund off in proper style when he donated $1000 to this worthy cause . . . Gov. Tobin and other prominent persons have purchased blocks of tickets for tonight's show.

Dog Track Peace

THE NEW racing commission composed of Chairman Louis Hoffman, Owen Gallagher and Harry Allen has made peace with the dog tracks, and it is expected that Wonderland Park will be awarded 100 nights of racing, while Dighton and Raynham will each receive 50 nights . . . The ways and means committee of the Legislature recommended that 200 nights of dog racing be allotted so as to increase State revenue . . . Gov. Tobin has not asked the racing commission to slash dog racing dates on "moral grounds" as he did a year ago . . . An official announcement on dog track dates is expected tomorrow.

Danvers Club Has Ambitious Program

By "TAP" GOODENOUGH

Only one-and-one-half years old, a real "war baby," the Danvers Fish and Game Club has found a way to relieve its "growing pains," through a most ambitious program. And here's how the members keep busy:

1—Maintaining a trout pool, thus lessening pressure on public waters.

2—Running a skeet and trap field.

3—Carrying on an indoor and outdoor small-bore rifle range.

4—Releasing pheasants throughout local covers.

5—Raising bass for distribution to public fishing waters.

Listen to what Secretary Walter Lainik has to say: "It is our contention that hunting and fishing can be improved—not by screaming at the Division for more fish and birds—but by organizing and establishing trout pools, rearing bass, and releasing pheasants."

The club was founded to give the average sportsman a place to come occasionally to obtain a clearer perspective on his favorite pastimes, at the same time meeting and chatting with other outdoorsmen. Gatherings are held on the second Thursday of each month, where the business discussions are followed by entertainments, speakers and the like.

Officers for this year are as follows: President, Fred Willoth, Danvers; vice-pres., Dr. Harley Forsythe, Salem; and sec'y-treas. Walt Lainik, Danvers . . . A board of directors is comprised of the above three, plus Richard Blake, Salem; and Dr. R. Robert Richardson, Marblehead . . . More about this live outfit later.

OUTDOOR O. O.'s: The opening week for salmon and lake trout fishing in New Hampshire was very spotty, according to reports . . . High winds hindered trolling, with the sport limited to sheltered coves and offshore . . . At Lake Sunapee, many fine catches of squaretails were taken from wharves, and one angler tied into one measuring over 20 inches . . . Sunapee is the only lake in N. H. where brook trout may be caught before May 1st . . . Some good-sized salmon and lake trout have been hooked in Newfoundland lake

Outfielders Leroy Paton and Ed Hartness and pitcher Lee Anthony went to Nashville of the Southern Association; infielder Sindo Vallee was returned to the Jacksonville, Fla., Southern Atlantic League club. Newcomer was Joe Gantenbein, free agent, former Athletics infielder.

Boxer Near Death After Losing Fight

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., April 25 (AP)—Harvey Weiss, New York welterweight, lost an eight-round decision to Patsy Gall of Hazleton last night at the Armory—then collapsed as his seconds tended to his wounds.

Weiss was reported in serious condition in Nesbitt Memorial Hospital in nearby Kingston suffering from a possible cerebral hemorrhage.

Pics Fail Again To Clinch Series

VANCOUVER, B. C., April 25 (AP)—The United States amateur hockey championship playoff was all square at three victories apiece after Vancouver Canucks defeated Boston Olympics 3-0 in the sixth game of their best-of-seven series. The teams meet Friday night in the final game.

The Canucks got all their counters in the opening period and clamped on a defense that held Boston neatly in check for the rest of the distance.

McDougall sent the Vancouver six off to a flying start with an unassisted goal in the first half-minute of play and cornered the offensive honors by assisting on the final goal.

Golf Lacking Young Players

HERSHEY, Pa., April 25 (AP)—Professional golf must find a way to lure younger players into the game or face the loss of its present popularity, Ben Hogan, the nation's leading money winner in pro ranks this year, declared today.

Hogan, home for a short rest, said "there are not enough young players coming to the front in recent years. Sooner or later the present leaders will fade and there will be nobody to replace them."

He declared the war was largely responsible for the present lack of interest displayed in golf by America's teen-agers, pointing out many promising stars were forced to give up golf when called into service, while others were handicapped by a scarcity of golf supplies.

"Now is the time to start building for the future," asserted the Hershey Country Club pro. "The work must start in our high schools, and out on our golf links," adding that the pro golfers must do their part to keep the game going.

"If the club members will encourage the caddies to go out and play as much as possible, we will soon be able to develop a few more Nelsons, Sneads, and McSpadens," said Hogan.

Don't Blame It All on to Clubs

BY BYRON NELSON

If I seem to be writing too much about clubs, charge it up to the fact that they have been on my mind a great deal of late because of the temporary trouble I had with my iron shots during the Miami Four Ball. But let me emphasize that there are many valuable hints for the novice golfer to be found in my experiences with golf clubs.

Byron Nelson

All too often we are inclined to blame the faults of our game on the clubs we're using. Back in 1934 and 1935, for instance, I was working hard on my game, but was having a great deal of trouble with my woods, especially the driver.

Every time I started driving badly, I'd buy a new set of woods or a driver. The climax came just before the National Open at Oakmont in Pittsburgh when I said to my wife, Louise, "I've got to buy a new driver."

After not saying a word for several years about spending money for new clubs that was needed at home she said, "In the last two years you have spent between four and five hundred dollars for new clubs and you're still driving badly. It can't be all in the clubs. With that many clubs to pick from you must have had at least one that was suited to your game. Secondly, I need a new dress."

There wasn't an argument in the world I could give her because she was absolutely right. But the next morning I got up early, went out to the golf shop, took my driver, put it in a vice, took a wood rasp and went to work on refacing it—just barely touching it here and there. Finally, when the club face looked good to my eye I went out and hit some practice shots with it. From that day on I haven't had any trouble with my driving.

The work I did on that club was not what aided me to be a good driver. That driver has been worn out for some time, but after working on the club face I had confidence in it and I never doubted my ability to drive again.
